Hi Travis,

Yes, you are correct. Principally it is to determine the carbon range of the TPH so we know if it's gas, diesel, motor oil, etc. affecting the soil at the bore location. Some labs call these fuel fingerprints.

Hi Mark,

Just following up on our conversation yesterday about the fuel fingerprint analysis requested in the attached letter. You confirmed it was meant to be a request for full TPH range analysis. Please let me know if I misunderstood. Otherwise, we'll plan for the full TPH range analysis.

Thanks,

Travis L. Flora
