I received a call from Peter Robertson, the property owner/developer for 2145 35th Avenue, Oakland. He wanted to know the status of the work plan his consultant submitted for review in November 2007. I told him that I have completed the review and have prepared a draft letter for supervisor review. He wanted to know what was in the letter. I told him that since the letter is "draft," the issues we discuss may change. He wanted to know anyway. So I told him in general terms that the letter discusses the advantage of attempting to further characterize the site in one mobilizations rather than collecting limited data, preparing a report, and then mobilize again for additional data. I told him that the draft letter should be out within a week. He said he would call back in a week.
