Not sure I understand your question. Provide more information on how I believe that exposure to fumes from fuel leaks occurred ? What ? I don't know how fuel leaks occur. Isn't that your job to figure out ? Isn't that what our tax dollars are going to ? Look you asked for people to comment and thats what I did comment. Now i have to do your job too ? How you guys handle these types of environmental issues should be re-evaluated if you are going to put the public at risk multiple times. By the way you don't have to be doctor to know that breathing in fuel fumes are hazardous to your health.

Thank you.

Mr. Vasconcelos,

Would you please indicate your address so that we can better review your comments. Also, it would help if you can provide more specific information on how you believe that exposure to fumes from fuel leaks has occurred.

Mr. Wickham

My wife and I have been waiting for someone to contact us regarding this issue. We live right across the street from the gas the leak. We have have endured multiple attempts to fix these gas leak's over the last 10 years. How many gas leaks were there and how long did they go un noticed for ? It's literally been a construction zone for a very long time over here. Not only the inhalation of fumes but also the dust, dirt and debris has been a nightmare. I believe there have multiple attempts to try and fix the gas leaks issue, only until this last clean up were we aware of this potentially hazardous health issues that may arise. We believe the inhaling of these fumes, over many years have caused or will cause us multiple health issues. We believe that the owners of the Shell station and the City of Pleasanton were egregious in there handling of these issues. How is someone not being held accountable for this. Also the ACEH dropped the ball in waiting so long to notify people of the first leak many years ago. How is there not a class action lawsuit being filed ? Seems preposterous to me. Maybe it should be looked into further. We have been asked to comment so here are my comments. All we got was a letter, with no apology or anything.

Best regards
