Chris, Mike,

I wanted to followup on the directive letter just sent. For some reason the copies you previously sent have gone missing. I gave them to an assistant to be scanned and they appear to have gone into a black hole, and she is now gone some months. Probably partly my mistake for not taking copies first. I am hoping that you retain quick access to copies of those documents so that the case doesn't need to recreate everything from scratch. That was the gist of the second comment, in case you were wondering. If you have questions, do let me know.

Best,

Mark,

Our scanner does not produce the best quality images. I copied the documents and you will have hard copies Monday.

For historic files we can; however, you may want to consider converting them to PDF if you're already making copies? If interested you could then just upload them to the ftp website, you'll find a link below my name. You'd need to get a password, and then transfer copies over. But regardless, Monday would be fine, and later in the week as well if you do convert to PDF. In reality progress or movement is my main criteria. (Oh, one thing - the ftp site doesn't support uploads from a Mac for some reason, so that may or may not be an issue for you).

Mark,

I was hoping to fax you documentation on this leak case today but I found more documents than I expected in our files and faxing would not be practical. Will you accept Monday delivery via FedEx?

Hi Chris,
 Please use this email as approval of your request.

Hope you are doing well. I was wondering if you recalled my name.... I recall sampling the old stockpile for ABF when I was at Blymeyer Engineers, so they may have some more info? Yes I've joined the "other side", but was it into the light or into the darkness that I went?

Mark Detterman,

We are in receipt of your letter dated July 12, 2010, requesting information on underground tank removals at the above-referenced location. I would like to request a 5-day extension of your August 16, 2010 deadline for submittal and submit the information to you by August 20, 2010. I have recently found a file that contains some of this information you request and need some time to go through it.

Please let me know if the deadline extension is acceptable.
